I have a small problem with VCS merge. In my project I added a small change to one of the classes. When I try to merge it with the server, I recieve the following error: The working copy "C:\Repos\WorkSpace\Project" has changes that have been recently added to your working copy which are not yet available to merge. I googled a lot and found that the problem can be caused by wrong directory path to files. It may look like this: \tfs\wwwroot\public\..\..\..\..\Repos\WorkSpace\Project What is the solution of this? A: Try deleting the files from the tfs sources manually. This forces tfs to look at the local files instead of the files stored in the repository. This problem is caused by the changed files not existing on the server, but rather in the repository. A: I had the same issue and resolved it this way Go to the source control menu (Ctrl + Alt + L) -> Source Control Explorer (see picture) In the solution explorer: go to "Tfs\tfs\wwwroot\public\..\..\..\..\Repos\WorkSpace\Project" and then "Add" (Add ->. - see picture) After adding a new directory in the TFS source control explorer: right click on the newly added directory -> Tfs -> Unbind go to the solution explorer again -> Source Control Explorer right click on the newly added directory -> Tfs -> Bind go back to the solution explorer -> Source Control Explorer select the newly added directory -> Source Control Explorer -> Go to Source Control (see picture) Viola! A: After a bit more searching, I found this blog which has the same problem and the fix. The fix is to perform a
