DNA-templated nucleic acid polymerization is the basis for a number of DNA biosensor applications. Examples include the detection of specific DNA sequences, the analysis of nucleic acid structural features, and the detection of RNA. The present protocol describes an ultrasensitive one-step enzymatic polymerization assay to detect labeled, 5-deoxy-dT, 2'-deoxyuridine 5'-monophosphate (dUTP) and 5-deoxy-dT, 2'-deoxycytidine 5'-monophosphate (dCTP) using a mammalian polymerase. The assay does not require preamplification or denaturation of nucleic acid targets and, therefore, is particularly
